Synodality The entire People of God is challenged by its fundamentally synodal calling...In this perspective, the participation of the lay faithful becomes essential. They are the immense majority of the People of God (Church) and there is much to be learnt from their participation in the various forms of the life and mission of ecclesial communities, from popular piety and pastoral care, as well as their specific competency in various sectors of cultural and social life. Consulting them is thus indispensable for initiating processes of discernment in the framework of synodal structures. We must, therefore, overcome the obstacles...in which the lay faithful can express themselves and act, and by a clerical mindset which runs the risk of keeping them on the edges of ecclesial life. This requires a priority commitment in the task of forming a mature ecclesial sense, which, at the institutional level, needs to be transformed into a regular synodal process.
